Chapter 1 by Kara

June 17, 1933

Frank Nash was going to prison.

Seven armed peace officers watched him ceaselessly as the train clanked and rattled over the Missouri bound tracks, closer and closer to his final resting point. Frank sighed and leaned his head against the booth. He was going to prison. The most successful bank robber in the USA, with three wives, over two hundred robberies, and the murder of his best friend to his name, was finally going to prison.
